NUMBER 46

HORSE-RAISING.
An Industry Which, at Present, Offers Better Advantages Than Cattle or Hog Breeding.

The prospect for making money by keeping cattle on the open range and ranch is not as good as it was a few years ago. The best locations have been secured, and with rare exceptions the natural supplies of water are controlled by persons who use them as they do private property. In many of the Territories there are combinations among the ranchmen who have been on the ground for several years that place all the difficulties they conveniently have large capital, and are able to exert a powerful political influence.
They obtain breeding stock to better advantage than men who are seeking to establish themselves, and can secure more favorable terms for transportation. They have prepared as few persons have who have been engaged in any department of stock-raising.
Many of them will continue to make money, as they have experience, capital and facilities that are now difficult to secure. According to the reports of several ranch and range companies made at the close of last year the profits on the capital invested were small. A comparatively high price was paid for young cattle, while calves sold at low figures. The action of the National Government in relation to grazing lands in Indian Territory and the erection of wire fences on public lands has been unfavorable to the interests of many ranchmen.

Hog-raising is less profitable than it has been at any time since the beginning of the civil war. The price of all pork products is very low. Our pork is excluded from several countries where it was once extensively sold. The periodic alarms about trichina in this country as well as in foreign countries have caused many people, especially in large towns, to abandon the use of pork.
The swine disease popularly known as hog cholera has made the business of hog raising less profitable. There is more risk from disease in keeping hogs than in keeping any other kind of domestic animals. Feeders who keep hogs in connection with cattle are butchering for market to derive the most profit from them. The pork production is a clear gain. Very few extensive stock-raisers now feed corn or other grains directly to hogs.
The outlook for large gains in keeping sheep is poor. Wool and ordinary mutton are both very low. While many are not inclined to sacrifice their flocks of sheep, few desire to increase them.
Some find that there is profit in supplying the local market with mutton; others wish mutton for their own tables, and a few keep sheep for the purpose of keeping up the fertility of their land.
All sheep-raisers are hopeful of a favorable turn in their business.

The prospects for making money in breeding and raising horses and mules are not much better than those for hogs.
Horses of all descriptions command good prices. As wealth increases in large cities there is an increasing demand for horses that will make fast time on the race-course, for fine carriage horses and for riding horses.
The demand for heavy draft horses for use on drays and transfer-wagons was never better. The demand for middle-weight horses is also good. The increase of street car lines in all large towns calls for a large number of horses suitable for drawing cars. Street railways make a demand for more horses than ordinary railways ever displaced. The development of Dakota and the western territories of California has created a demand for horses in the Northwest.
They are wanted not only for farm work, but for drawing stages and doing general teaming. These parts of the continent will require more horses than they can produce during the next twenty years. The first settlers of any new country can not engage in horse breeding very extensively. They have not the capital to purchase breeding stock, to erect stables, and to enable them to wait till animals grow to a size that they can be put to work. They find it to their advantage to raise cattle and hogs for several years after they have settled on their places.

Although the demand for mules in the States north of Missouri is small, owing to a foolish prejudice against them, the demand for mules in the South is as good as ever and promises to continue. Raising mules for the Southern market is a profitable business for all who are so situated that they can engage in it. Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa are well situated for breeding and raising mules.
The climate is favorable, while grass, corn and oats are leading crops. St.
Louis is the largest mule market in the world, and it is easily reached by railway or river communication by parties living in any of these States. Extensive buildings for protection are not so essential for mules as for horses.
Shelters for mules can be made of very cheap materials. The mule is a hardy animal which will stand exposure that will greatly injure a horse. Mares suitable for raising mule colts can be obtained from Oregon or the Western Territories at comparatively little expense. Parties proposing to engage in the business require considerable capital, as there will be no returns for at least two years. After that time a "crop" of mules can be sold every year, and the expenditure of labor and money will be small.

The raising of horses and mules can be carried on in connection with grain-raising and general farming in most of the Western States and Territories to excellent advantage. Most of the plowing is done in the fall, and the mares that are expected to drop colts in the spring can do this work. The mule or horse colts will be a size to be sold from their dams before it is time to turn them out to grass for hay or harrowing grass. The mares that have dropped colts in the fall and early fall, and can plow the land for another crop later in the season.
By judicious management the mares can be made to do work enough to pay for their keep, so that their colts will be a net gain. All the food for the mares and their progeny can be raised on the place, and there will be no money outlay, except for male animals and buildings for shelter. At present prices there is more money in draft animals than in those raised for supplying meat. That such a state of things seems likely. The demand for horses in all countries increases as wealth and civilization increases.—Chicago Times.

The United States have nearly three times as many doctors as England, and nearly four times as many as France in proportion to the popula-

BIG ATTRACTIOnS AT THE Old Reliable! DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING EMPORIUMS OF M. FRANKEL & SONS, who keep up their end of town against ALL COMERS.

Summer Necessities in every kind of Fancy and staple Dry Goods, Clothing, Etc., At figures that discount all Bankrupt and shelf-worn stocks and so-called cheap store prices and all this!

New, Fresh, Clean and Desirable Goods.

We take this method of extending our sincere thanks to our many friends and customers, for the liberal patronage bestowed upon us for the past 26 years. We have, since our establishment in this city in 1860, tried our utmost to gain the confidence of the people, by giving them

Good, Honest, Serviceable Goods for LESS MONEY than they could be bought elsewhere, and by making plain and true statements and representations in offering these goods.

It needs no explanation from us to show how our goods and prices have been appreciated. Our business has continually improved; our customers have grown more, year by year, consequently we have been forced to carry a Large Stock

from time to time, until we now carry the largest and best selected stock of Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots, Shoes, Hats, Furnishing Goods, TRUNKS AND VALISES

—In Hopkinsville. Our two Store Rooms,

NOS. 13 AND 15 SOUTH MAIN STREET, are packed with the above mentioned goods. We carry no shoddy or trashy goods, but sell you good, durable goods, at same prices that you pay for trashy goods. We have often been asked, "Why don't you handle common goods?" Our answer is invariably that we find it pays to handle nothing but first-class goods, and when people want good goods they come to us, and if they try them once they never fail to try them again; while on the other hand should we sell a customer an inferior article we would not be very apt to see him again. It is our aim to gain customers and retain them. Our calculation is to sell often at a small margin, which is more profitable than selling a customer once at large margin and not selling him again.

We offer this month, (June) only, GREAT BARGAINS, our entire stock at such Low Prices that you will be astonished.

We will not endeavor to quote prices for our competitors to copy after, but ask you to call at our

Mammoth Store Rooms,

Where you can see the goods, examine them closely and see for yourself that they are as we say

GREAT BARGAINS.

We will not offer you as an inducement, a few Calicoes, Domestic, Laws, &c., at cost, but every article in our house will go far below its value. We have determined to maintain our reputation for less you price elsewhere, then we feel confident, you will be very much astonished at our extreme Low Prices. Good honest goods are the rule, and we offer you nothing unless we can recommend it. A child of 5 years can trade with us with as much confidence as a grown person, and will be trea-

G. Blaine forgot to send one.

There are flattering prospects that Louisville's opera festival this week will be a grand success. It will last from the 9th to the 12th inst.

Statistics show that a great many distinguished men marry in June.
Cleveland only followed the example set by many of us in the past.

Rev. Dr. Sunderland received a $100 fee for tying the matrimonial knot for Mr. Cleveland. The money was handed to him by Mr. Lamont and he gave it to his wife, who will keep it as a memento of the occasion.

H. M. Brooks, alias Maxwell, the notorious St. Louis trunk murderer, was Saturday found guilty of the murder of C. A. Preller and will receive the death penalty for his crime.
The case will be appealed and it may be a year or two before Maxwell will wear a necktie of hemp.

The minutes of the Kentucky Press Meetings of 1884 and 1886 have been published in a neat pamphlet, together with the constitution and by-laws.
They were printed by the Secretary at the Owensboro Messenger office.
The association will hold a special meeting in Louisville next Friday, the 11th inst.

Invitations are out to the marriage of Mr. Tom L. Cannon, of Henderson, to Miss Daisy O'Bannon, of St. Louis.
Mr. Cannon was formerly editor of the Henderson Sentinel but has more recently engaged in a more lucrative business than running a country newspaper. He has many friends among the journalistic ranks who will be glad to know that his bachelor career will end on the 23rd inst.

About a thousand cards announcing the marriage of the President were sent out to the blue bloods of Washington society Friday and to intimate friends of the President and Mrs. Cleveland in Albany and Buffalo.
They were very simple and plain and read as follows:

"Mr. Grover Cleveland and Miss Frances Folsom married on Wednesday, June 2, 1886. Executive Mansion, Washington."

Mr. Manning has tendered his resignation as Secretary of the Treasury, but the President has written him a letter granting him a leave of absence until October 1st, and asking him to let his resignation lie over until that time. Secretary Manning's health has been very bad for some time and, accepting the suggestion of the President, he has gone to Hot Springs, Va., to try to regain his health and strength.

A singular suit was brought before Justice McCann in this city Thursday.
Sometime since [the Journeymen Painters' Association of Louisville ordered its members to stop work pending a demand for increased wages. This order was obeyed by the plaintiffs in the present action, who sue for the full amounts they would have received had they continued at work instead of obeying the orders to strike. The association offered to pay the plaintiffs $1 each per day, which they refused to accept and filed the suits in question.—Cour-rier Journal.

district. There are several other aspirants in the field. Wolford will not be a candidate for re-election.

"Aunt Betsy" McKay, of Taylorsville, celebrated the 100th anniversary of her birth on the 4th inst. She was escorted to the church by a general assembly 82 years old and the horse driven was 30 years of age. The aggregate age of the turnout was 212 years. 112 of her descendants were present.

J. Davis Hutchcraft, a young lawyer of Paris, went boat-riding alone on the evening of May 31, and has never been seen since. The boat was found right side up and foul play is suspected. Hutchcraft had accident insurance policies for 12,000 expiring June 6th.

Mrs. Charles Riggs, daughter of Hager Soper, was thrown over the railings on Lo Young bridge, about five miles south of Carlisle, and killed Wednesday. Mrs. Thompson, her sister, was with her, but was not thrown over, and only got a slight bruise in falling from the buggy.
The bridge is about forty feet from the water. She had been married but a short time.

About a year ago the wife of Mr.
J. Wesley Parish, of this county, died. In April his daughter married Mr. J. Henry Turpin. In May Mr.
Turpin, sister to J. Henry Turpin, deceased. Went Mr. Turpin alive to his brother-in-law; and it is yet possible for Mr. Parish's child to be a cousin of his grandchild.
This is a rare occurrence. The widowed daughter is 14 years old.—Richmond Herald.

Twenty years ago, in Grant County, G. W. Osborn and Samuel Anderson, sons of prosperous farmers, quarreled about the sale of some sheep, and Anderson shot and killed Osborn. It was said to have been an unprovoked murder and Anderson left the State and disappeared. A short while ago a man 40 years old, and haggard, returned to the scene of the crime, which had almost been forgotten, and gave himself up, saying he was Osborn's slayer. He was disbelieved at first, but the matter was investigated and new indictments were made out and the case has been called for trial.

THE H. & C. R. R.

Cadiz Willing For it to Be Built.

[Telephone.]

The city of Hopkinsville is situated on a branch of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, and we hear much complaint against this road for the unequal discrimination in freights that the managers make against Hopkinsville. The citizens have it in their power to meet this difficulty by building a branch road to the Cumberland River. In doing this they will open up and develop channels which will add to the material wealth of the city beyond the most sanguine expectations of her citizens. The branch which would lead to the C. O. & S. W. railroad will pass through undeveloped and rich coal fields, while the branch that would pass through Cadiz will make an outlet, by rail, for a rich, agricultural country, and before it reaches the Cumberland, strikes a rich belt of iron ore land.
The ore taken from the tunnels, we dare say, will more than pay for cutting them.

Upon the completion of these two branches, what do we have? A coal field at one end, iron ore at the other, and also giving two outlets by rail, and another by water, at the western terminus of the branch which will pass through Cadiz. With these advantages, we do not think it possible that Hopkinsville can fail to see the importance of putting one or both of these lines on foot, and pressing them to a speedy completion.

The iron ore, mentioned above, is the richest hematite, from which is made the very best quality of charbonaceous iron.

To say that these enterprises would improve an hundred-fold the sections of country through which they will pass, would be but a feeble effort to express our opinion as to the advantages that would be derived from them, while in our sister city, Hopkinsville, manufacturers will be built that would compete with any in the world.

There are on Cumberland river and throughout Trigg county heavy forests of timber that are unappreciated now, while hundreds of rafts of logs are floated down the river annually.
Thus with timber, iron and coal, and
with agricultural products at home, what could facilitate the erection of factories faster?

There are men in this and Christian county who have the money to build this road if convinced that, as an investment, it would pay, but who are prone to look upon every new enterprise as utopian, hence will permit their money to rust in the ground rather than risk it in helping to build a railroad. There are also other capitalists who know nothing of the topography or geography of this country, but are now, through agents, investigating the feasibility of the enterprise, and will likely reap the benefits of it ere business men awake from their lethargy.

Hopkinsville has passed through one crisis, and is now passing through another, each of which will mark an important epoch in her history. The first was on the adoption of her present free school system, which was the most progressive step she had ever taken; and the advantageous results attained by this step will doubtless be the most cogent argument to use in advocating the construction of this railroad, now agitating the minds of her commercial citizens.

Hopkinsville has passed through
doubtless be the most cogent argument to use in advocating the con-
ating the minds of her commercial
citizens.

There are on Cumberland river and
throughout Trigg county heavy for-
are floated down the river annually.
Thus with timber, iron and coal, and
with agricultural products at home,
factories faster?

prise as utopian, hence will per-
who know nothing of the topogra-
phy or geography of this country,

of it ere business men awake from

Barnum's Show.

TIRED OF LIFE!

HENRY HARVE ROBINSON ENDS HIS EARTHLY CAREER FRIDAY.

A Pistol the Weapon Used.

Hopkinsville has had many shows but she never before had one like that of P. T. Barnum & Co., last Thursday. It was without doubt the most stupendous affair that ever spread its tents in this part of the country. It is impossible to particularize in the limited space at our command. Suffice it to say the show had everything advertised and was even far better than the people expected. Three rings were running at once in the circus department and the show lasted for three hours. The manager contained every animal claimed, from Jumbo's skeleton to the lion cub.

Everything was conducted in a manner entirely different from the usual style. There were no peanut sellers, lemonade vendors or other such nuisances to worry the people to death, but everything was done with an eye single to the pleasure and comfort of those in attendance. The crowd numbering probably 10,000, in the afternoon and 5,000 at night, the Kentuckian representatives were placed under especial obligations to Mr. Morris H. Warner, the gentlemanly press agent, for repeated courtesies. Special seats were provided for the press and no effort was spared to enhance the pleasure of the pencil pushers. Barnum's show is undoubtedly the biggest one on the road; it is managed in all its departments by gentlemen and there is not a bad feature about it.

To the Voters of the Hopkinsville Magisterial District.

Having been solicited by a large number of voters, irrespective of party, to become a candidate for Justice of the Peace, in this district. And my duties as a member of the State Board of Equalization compelling me to be in Frankfort for some weeks, I take this method of reminding you that, though absent, I am still a candidate for Magistrate and respectfully solicit your votes at the August election. Yours truly,

B. E. RANDOLPH.

Renews Her Youth.

Mrs. Phoebe Chesley, Peterson, Olney Co., Iowa, tells the following remarkable story, the truth of which is vouched for by the residents of the town: "I am 73 years old, have been troubled with kidney complaint and lameness for many years; could not dress myself without help. Now I am free from all pain and soreness, and am able to do all my own housework. I owe my thanks to Electric Bitters for having renewed my youth and pain." Try a bottle, only 50¢ at J. R. The Metcalfe Man'y. Co. is receiving large numbers of engines and threshers for repairs and those wanting such work done should apply as early as possible.

We are authorized by Mr. Thos. L. Graham, manager, to say that the statement made in the New Era of Saturday to the effect that the Casky Creamery had suspended operations is entirely unfounded. The creamery has not stopped running for a single day since April, 1883, and is still turning out a first-class article of butter.

A Pistol the Weapon Used.

News of the suicide of Henry Harve Robinson reached the city yesterday. It occurred at the residence of his brother, Merrill Robinson, in Wilson precinct, at 3 o'clock Friday, June 4th. He had seemed moody and dejected for some time and was observed repairing an old broken revolver a day or two before. On the afternoon in question he walked out into the back yard saying that he was going to shoot a hawk. The report of the pistol was heard and after several minutes the family discovered his prostrate body. He had put the pistol to his head and deliberately committed suicide. He was alive when found, but died about dusk the same day.

Decased was a bachelor and was about 47 or 48 years of age. He had been in feeble health for some time and the supposition is that he was tired of living and concluded to end his unhappy life. It is also stated that he had been considered somewhat unbalanced in mind for some time. He was a poor man and leaves no estate. Before killing himself he shaved himself and made other preparations that showed the act was done with a deliberation that does not consist with the insanity theory.

A False Report.

A malicious and unwarranted report has been circulated by machine men to the effect that the St. Paul Harvester Co., was in such a crippled condition as not to be able to fill orders, and I hereby take this method of denouncing it as a lie out of whole cloth, and a scheme concocted to advance individual interest.

THE BENEDICT.

Details of the President's Wedding

The wedding day was ushered in with bright, beautiful weather; and almost with the rising sun came the bride and her kinsfolks to the executive mansion, after their night journey from New York. The day at the mansion was a comparatively quiet one when the importance of its closing events is considered. Of course there was considerable stir and activity and excitement on the part of those upon whom devolved the duties of final preparation for the wedding, but it is safe to say the president, although quite as active and industrious as any about the mansion, was the least excited of any.

He was early in the library transacting official business. He directed that three private pension bill votes be sent to congress; had a conference by appointment with Senator Van Wyck, saw Senator L. C. Lamar, and Fitchell about some interior department matters; had several short conferences with Dr. Sunderland, about the details of the marriage service, and found time early in the afternoon, to take a drive out alone in his landau. About half-past 6 o'clock in the evening the bustle and excitement of preparation for the event began to transform it into reality.

The invited guests, cabinet officers and their wives, who were not abiding in the mansion, then began to arrive. They were at once shown to the state dining room, where Miss Ross, Elizabeth Cleveland and others relatives of the bride and groom, together with Dr. Sunderland, were waiting to receive them. The assembled guests, standing on the eastern and western sides of the oval-shaped blue room where the marriage ceremony took place, had but a few minutes to wait, for promptly at 7 o'clock the President with Miss Folsom leaning upon his arm came down stairs and entering through the northern doorway advanced to the center of the room and there stood facing the background of palms, ferns and flowers in the southern end of the room.

Dr. Sunderland assisted by his brother, Rev. William Cleveland, stood facing the bride and groom. The invited guests present and who witnessed the ceremony were: Mrs. Folsom, mother of the bride; Rev. W. N. Cleveland, the president's brother; Miss Cleveland, Mrs. Hoyt, the president's sister; Miss E. Bayard, secretary of state; Miss Bagehot; Daniel Manning, secretary of the treasury; Mrs. Manning; William C. Endicott, secretary of the war; Mrs. Endicott; William C. Whitney, secretary of the navy; Mrs. Whitney; William F. Vilas, the postmaster general; Mrs. Vilas; L. Q. C. Lamar, secretary of the interior; Daniel S. Lamont, private secretary to the president; Mrs. Lamont; Benjamin Folsom, of Buffalo, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Rogers, of Seneca Falls, N. Y.; Mrs. Codman and Harmon, of Boston, Mass., relatives of the bride; Miss Nelson, of New York, and Mr. W. S. Bissell, of Buffalo, N. Y., the president's former law partner.

Immediately after the entrance of the president and Miss Folsom, Dr. Sunderland advanced and proceeded with the marriage ceremony as follows:

"For as much as we are assembled to observe the holy rite of marriage, it is needful that we should seek the blessing of the great God, our Father, whose institution it is, and therefore I beseech you to follow me with reverent hearts in prayer to Him."

"Almighty and Everlasting God, the father of our spirits, the framer of our bodies, the giver of every good and perfect gift, Thou who canst set the end from the beginning, who knowest what is best for us Thy children, and hast appointed the high rite of marriage to be sacredly observed throughout all generations. Regard now, we beseech Thee, Thy servant our elder magistrate; shew him plenteously, with Thy grace and till His with wisdom to walk in thy ordinances. Be very right to him in the midst of many averse and grave responsibilities day by day; may Thy law direct him and Thy strength uphold him and be Thou forever his sun and shield, and be graciously pleased to look down upon this Thy daughter, even as Thou didst favor the chosen Rebekah, and many noble women that have adorned the world. May she indeed be a precious boon of God to her husband to cheer and help him continually, a woman gifted with the beauty of the Lord and shedding the sweet influence of a Christian life upon the nation in whose sight she is to dwell. Wilt Thou approve what we Thy servants, come to do in Thy name by Thine authority and under the laws of the land in which we live, and graciously assist them, this man and this woman who are here to be united in the bonds of holy wedlock according to the institution of Thy words. Mercifully be pleased, Almighty God, to vouchsafe to each of them Thy grace, that they may well and truly weigh the unfailing vows which they now about to make to each other in the presence of this company and before Thee. And that they may be enabled hereafter at all times so to live together as to rejoice in the solemnization of this union with joy unspeakable and full of glory through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen."

After the prayer Dr. Sunderland made the following address:

"Marriage is honorable among all men in that a man shall leave his father and mother and shall cleave unto his wife, and they twain shall be one flesh. It was constituted by our creator in the First Paradise. It was confessed by patriarch and priest, prophet and apostle. It was confirmed by the teaching and admired with presence of the redeemer, and has been honored by the faithful keeping of all good men and women since the world begun."

"It is not, therefore, to be undertaken lightly or unadvisedly, but soberly, discreetly and in the fear of God. To this holy estate this man and this woman come now to enter. If any one now can slow just cause why they may not be lawfully married let him now speak or else hereafter forever hold his peace. If you desire to be united in marriage you will signify the same joining your hands."

Here the president and Miss Folsom joined hands. The clergyman continuing asked:

"Groves, do you take this woman whom you hold by the hand to be your lawful wedded wife, to live together after God's ordinance in the holy estate of wedlock. Do you promise to love her, cherish, comfort and keep her in sickness and in health, in joy and in sorrow, and forsaking all others keep you only unto her so long as you both shall live?"

President Cleveland responded firmly: "I do."

Dr. Sunderland, then addressing Miss Folsom, asked:

"Frances, do you take this man whom you hold by the hand to be your lawful wedded husband, to live together after God's ordinance in the holy estate of wedlock. Do you promise to love him, honor, comfort and keep him in sickness and in health, in joy and in sorrow, and forsaking all others keep you only unto him so long as you both shall live?"

The lady responded: "I do."

"In token of the same," said Dr. Sunderland, "let the wedding ring be passed."

The President then placed the wedding ring upon the bride's finger.

Dr. Sunderland then pronounced the sanction, saying: "As far as much as Grover and Frances have here agreed and covenanted to live together after God's ordinance in the holy estate of wedlock, and have confirmed the same by giving and taking a wedlock ring, now, therefore, in the presence of this company, in the name of the Father and the Son and of the Holy Ghost, I pronounce and declare who is well known in this city—"

HARBORING A YANKEE SPY.

How He Entered an Atlanta Bomb-Proof and the Subsequent Events.

During the session of an important religious body in our city, I made the acquaintance of the Rev. Mr. Dubuc, a delegate from one of the Northwestern States, says a writer in the Atlanta Constitution. What attracted me toward the man was his amiability and meekness. Mr. Dubuc came up to my ideal of a preacher, and I found his companionship very pleasant. One noon my friend asked me if I thought any of the bomb-proofs dug by the citizens during the siege of Atlanta were still in existence. He desired to see one, as he had been requested by his friends at home to sketch it. "I know of one we can reach in a ten-minutes walk," I said. Mr. Dubuc was delighted, and we soon on our way to the place.

I had a slight acquaintance with the old lady upon whose premise the bomb-proof was situated, and when we reached the place and stated the object of our visit, permission was readily given. We examined the queer looking hole in the ground, which had served as a refectory from Sherman's shels. The bomb-proof furniture was in a fine state of preservation, and the old lady pointed it out to us with a good deal of pride. May it prosper, PIG.

MAY 29th, 1886.

ED. SOUTH KENTUCKIAN:

I am out of the flats with all the members of my body hanging together, although the clamorous mosquitoes still sit at me for two weeks. I went through a portion of McLean Co., last Saturday, which is fine farming country; the farmers are all prosperous, and are generally up with the times in the way of agricultural machinery and other conveniences. Their crops look well, and are in good growing condition. The farmers of that section ship their tobacco to Louisville, but at one end we found an opening to a crooked underground chamber, about six feet deep, ten feet long and five in width. No falling shell had sufficient force to penetrate that mound, composed of red clay, timber, and scrap iron.

When we scrambled out of the gloomy place the old lady remarked that when she occupied it the walls were lined with old carpets, and the floor was covered with rugs. With a few chairs and some blankets her family had found a night in the dugout, as she called it, very endurable. Those were stirring times," said Mr. Dubuc.

"We're, indeed," replied our hostess. "I can never forgive Gen. Sherman for shelling a city full of women and children."

"One of the necessities of war," said the preacher in an undertone. "But the way did any of your soldiers ever seek shelter in this snug little hole?"

"Only one," replied the lady, "and he turned out to be a Yankee spy."

"Is he possible," her two listeners exclaimed.

"Yes, I was never so surprised in my life. One day the shelling was unusually hot. Two spent shells struck the house. A soldier who was passing ran into our yard and made for the bomb-proof. He requested our permission to remain for a few minutes, and of course we had no objection. He was a fine looking young man and made himself very agreeable. When he left he expressed a wish for something to read, and I let him have 'The Aid-de-Camp,' a confederate novel. He promised to return it, but I did not expect to see it again."

"And did he return it? I asked.

"Yes, and I wish he hadn't. Why, what do you think? Two weeks later, after Sherman had occupied the city, I was out in my front yard one morning looking after the plants, when who should ride up to the fence but a young officer in a spick-spawn new uniform. I wouldn't look at him until he saluted me, and said: "Madam, I have called to return your book. I enjoyed it very much." I took the book back. It was 'The Aid-de-Camp.' Then I looked the officer full in the face. It was 'The Aid-de-Camp.' That's what they call it; the way did any of your soldiers ever seek shelter in this snug little hole?"
